PREVENTED A WRECK

S. W. Fields Discovered a Defect in a Car.

ENGINEER HANDCUFFED

Sheriff Mistook Him for Escaped Prisoner.

Pleadings of the Conductor were Heard and the Man was Released and Allowed to go.

Sylvester N. Fields, residing at 435 Belmont street, a postal clerk running between this city and New York, saved Erie fast train No. 8 from a certain wreck yesterday morning. The train was speeding along at about fifty miles an hour just east of Kent, when a wheel on the mail car in which Fields was working, became loosened. Fields heard the troubled rumbling, and taking in the situation at once, seized the brake rope and brought the train to a standstill. Upon examining the broken wheel, it was disclosed that had the train run possibly five hundred yards further, a wreck would have resulted.

The mail car was in charge of S. N. Fields, H. R. Whitney, of Warren and Harry Zimmerman, of Greenville, Pennsylvania. The train in question was running on time, and left the local station at 5:38, which is schedule time. Several Marion passengers were aboard.

Erie Engineer Mike Ricksecker, who runs between this city and Kent, and residing in Gallon, one of the most popular engineers that crosses his feet in Dugger's hotel, seemed to get into rather a serious predicament yesterday, according to the following extract from the Kent Daily Courier. It says:

"A rather exciting episode took place on Erie train 16 coming east Friday afternoon. The train left Dayton with Sheriff Boos, of Montgomery county, having in charge a prisoner for the Reformatory at Mansfield. The prisoner had a pad who escaped. The sheriff, it is said, made a mistake, and when he saw Engineer Mike Ricksecker, who got on at Marion, he mistook him for the missing man. The result was that Mike was soon in custody, handcuffed to the man bound for Mansfield and in duance vide. Com. ductor Moore took in the situation and pleaded tearfully for his old time comrade at the throttle. The sheriff was obdurate, and it began to look as if Mike was doomed. Moore pleaded with renewed vigor. He told of the many good qualities of a century, vouching for him as not only the best faithful, but one of the very best engineers in the service, as well as a veteran in the Civil war and other wars, an orator whom the A. & G. W. boys could not spare on reunion day, and one of the first citizens of good old Gallon. The official's heart was touched. He told Mr. Moore that he had known him for many years as a citizen and taxpayer of Dayton, and that he could not withstand his pleas, so he rather reluctantly turned the key and separated the prisoners. Mike was free to breathe the air again and got off at Gallon a thankful man, and a happy one."

A SERMON ON THE AMUSEMENT QUESTION

Rev. Mahood Addresses a Large Audience.

Fifteen Persons were Converted in After Meeting at Epworth Last Evening

A capacity audience greeted Evangelist Mahood in his special sermon on the amusement question at Epworth M. E. Church last night, and one of the most powerful revival services ever held in Marion, resulted.

"Cutting the Anchors" was the subject of the inspired address, and a sermon, disclosing many unusual details on the amusement question. The evangelist declared that the conscientious Christian must cut his anchors and launch out from the popular amusement shore. His main point of attack was the theatre and to the question, "Why Should the Christian Not Patronize the Theatre," he said, "In the first place all churches oppose the theatre; secondly, the theatre opposes the church, especially Sunday theatres; thirdly, as a rule, plays are immoral. In discussing this point, Rev. Mahood quoted from Cyrus W. Brady, of New York City, who made a personal investigation of the theatre by attending twenty of what was considered the best plays. He declared that Brady found that two-thirds were immoral and many absolutely vulgar."

"As a rule, actors and actresses are immoral and theatre attendants are never soul winners," were the two concluding reasons named by the speaker. Rev. Mahood approached the subject in a kind, effective manner and his thoughts were brought out through many practical and assuring illustrations.

At the close of the sermon, the evangelist extended an invitation, asking that all who wished to progress as Christian workers and do better work during the ensuing year, to march to the pulpit and confess the same by shaking hands with the pastors. Practically all of the congregation responded to the call, and the long line was greeted by Rev. Bailey, Rev. Rowley, Rev. Mahood, Rev. Rourke, Rev. Buerke, Rev. Platt and Rev. Hensel.

There were fifteen conversions in the after meeting and a score or more went forward for prayers.

PRACTICAL POINTS GIVEN

To the Y. M. C. A. Night School Pupils.

SECRETS OF SUCCESS

Are Outlined by Busby P. Sweeney.

Banquet is Given to the Pupils and an Intellectual Feast Follows.

One of the most pleasant occasions of the season in local Y. M. C. A. Circles was the social and intellectual feast of the mechanical drawing, electricity and mathematics classes of the Association night school which was enjoyed at a special meeting last night.

The members of the various classes assembled at the Association at 6:30 o'clock and an elegant three course supper was enjoyed. At its conclusion was a treat of more permanent nature—a practical talk by a practical man. B. P. Sweeney, superintendent of the Marion Steam Shovel company talked at some length on the theme, "The Keys to the Success of a Young Man."

Mr. Sweeney stated that it was indeed gratifying to see so many young men spending their evenings to improve their minds. He said, "Get an education at any cost, and thus equip yourselves for a successful battle of life, for there are thousands of men fall at the crucial test because of defective education." He spoke of the great opportunities of the young man today, disclosing the things learned from practical experience and how to grasp them.

The speaker said: "Mathematics, mechanical drawing and electricity, are three very important factors in the age in which we live. Mathematics is possible the greatest factor as its use is indispensable. Mechanical drawing is of no less minor consequence as it has made possible some of the greatest accomplishments of man such as the construction of steel bridges, buildings, canals, etc. Electricity is practically in its infancy and we can only prophesy what it has in store for us. In any of the classes, however, there is a requirement for brains, genius and originality."

The Men's mass meeting will be held at the Wesley M. E. Church on West Center street at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Rev. Mahood will talk on "Men's Hiding Places." A large chorus from the Y. M. C. A. will sing, and an interesting and helpful meeting is assured. A cordial welcome is extended to all.
